BECOME A FRIEND

The purpose of the Friends of the Rye Art Gallery remains much the same now as it did at the very beginning...

The Friends of The Rye Art Gallery is an association of persons of artistic discernment, not necessarily practising artists, who wish to foster in Rye the appreciation of the fine arts, especially painting and to support the activities of the Gallery.

A meeting of all Friends will be held in the studio-lecture-room in the near future when members will be invited to form their own committee to organise activities using the facilities offered by the Gallery in any manner which may be found suitable from time to time to improve the means of communication between painters and public.

Those wishing to become members or seeking further information should complete the perforated slip below and leave it with the attendant at the door, or write to

Howard and Mary Stormont (pictured) in their studio (c.1910) where they both lived and worked which is now Rye Art Gallery.

Mary Stormont set up the Rye Art Gallery charitable trust in 1957 and in 1962 following Mary's death the bequest including the buildings and her art collections became the start of The Rye Art Gallery Trust as we know it today.
